TECHNOLOGY WITHIN THE BALL

The ball incorporates the ACS (Aerodynamic Control System) technology, which enhances its performance in multiple ways. The construction of the ball is carefully designed to maintain consistent air pressure and retain its shape. Additionally, debossed grooves and strategically placed 3D inks, which dry at precise levels and locations, contribute to improved aerodynamics and ball feel.

- 1 Perfect cushioned-cover material for improved control.
- 2 Thermo-bonding joined technology for durability.
- 3 Layered construction performing in all conditions.
- 4 Optimized valve for air retention to maintain optimum shape.

QUALITY PRO

FULFILLING ULTIMATE STANDARDS

In order to attain the highest possible FIFA quality mark, a football must successfully pass the six tests for a FIFA QUALITY PRO mark under even more demanding conditions. The constancy of the shape and size of the ball is Examined in a seventh test. The ball is fired against a steel plate 2,000 times at 50 kilometres per hour. The ball passes the test only if all of its seams and air valves remain unscathed and any loss of pressure and changes in circumference and roundness are negligible.

FIFA
QUALITY PRO

The FIFA Quality Pro tests are to assess footballs under laboratory conditions, subjecting them to even tougher conditions than they will probably ever endure during a normal game. Even the slightest flaw in the ball will influence the way it flies through the air and rolls along the ground, something that could change the result of the game. Only ball that pass the tests receive the FIFA Quality marks. The Laws of the Game demand that all balls used for international matches organized by FIFA or the confederations bear one of the FIFA quality marks or the "IMS International Matchball Standard" mark.
